Everyday Patriotism.

Tomorrow, July the Fourth, is the anniversary of American independence, although the following day will be observed, as the Fourth this year comes on Sunday. Needless to say, it will be celebrated in the customary noisy manner. There will be no lack of patriotic expression this day, both in sentiment and action. Attention will be directed to the real significance of the day, and orators will vie with each other in endeavoring to arouse the slumbering fires of patriotism which for the most part lie dormant in the hearts of the people.

Patriotism aroused once a year is better than no patriotism at all, but the best sort is the kind that finds expression every day in the year. This can be manifested by civic virtue and pride—pride in clean municipal government, pride in attending the suggestion meetings to name good patriotic citizens to administer the local offices; pride in attending the primary elections and placing good men in nomination; pride in attending the general elections and voting for none but purely disinterested and patriotic officials. This is the sort of patriotism which must be cultivated now, and in the future. The drum and trumpet type is no longer necessary. It is the perils of peace which now threaten our country, and there never was more urgent need of patriotism than today.

This is the type of patriotism which should be urged by our Fourth of July orators. The past is glorious in history, but it is the future that most concerns us now. There never was a time, perhaps when the chance of war was more remote; but patriotism of a high degree was never more imperative. It is love of country, home, family and friends, which must solve all the social and civic problems which confront us today, and for this the exercise of patriotism is demanded every day in the year.

Helps all Around.

The proposed development at Newell show most conclusively that the fourth pool is destined to figure largely in industrial developments, and that manufacturing interests are following the coal production. During the past generation all the coal developments of the upper pools have gone to make Pittsburg great; now for some years past the tide has turned, and as new industries allied with the Pittsburg interests seek new locations, they follow the coal.

Newell's developments will attract others. There is the Clark farm, just above North Charleroi, which is being held for an industrial site. When Donora was projected it was a toss-up for several months whether the Clark farm or the present Donora site would be selected. Unfortunately for Charleroi at the time the Donora site was chosen, but the Clark farm is sure to come in some time, and when it does Greater Charleroi will lead all the towns in the county.

Electric Sparks

When a small girl or boy, well dressed, and evidently belonging to a good family, stops a person on the streets and asks for a penny or a larger sum, the said person sort of thinks that something is lacking in the kid's breeding.

At Fairmont members of the city council will not attend the meetings, it is understood because the liquor question is to be brought up. If such is the case, they can truly be said to be evading the issue.

There are a good many people who hate to hear the daughter of the man next door trying to play the piano. Likewise there are many that are not in raptures after a day spent in the neighborhood of a well driller.

A San Francisco astronomer states that the moon is not a detached portion of the earth, but a planet captured by our old world. If that is so, reckon some of these swains will not be so fond of singing odes to the moon, when they learn it really doesn't belong to us any more than from the fact that it is confiscated property.

Strawberries have practically had their day and cherries are just warming up to business, while apples and peaches are beginning to, appear upon the scene. And just think, many of us who have not thought of our vacations as yet.

Here's where a man by the name of Blond nearly lost his sight. With all due reverence of him, we might say that while Blond lost his sight, we do not intend to lose sight of any blond, especially if she is blessed with the ordinary good looks.

Possibly the reason for the heat of the past few days, and the sudden showers, is the fact of the arrangements that are being made for the Home Coming week at Punxsutawney, the attention of Brer Groundhog having been engrossed in preparing for the affair.

The Baltimore Sun attributes many divorces and scandals to "artificial anarchistic compositions of the rag-time kings" of the day. Doubtless, but don't you think there is more in the singing of them than the songs themselves.

"Billy Bingham," the paragrapher for the McKeesport Times, recently wrote a fierce article which he afterwards acknowledges was a dream, of going to Hades, and having the honored leader of the tribe there show him around over the place, only to find it colder than McKeesport. Now how are we to take that. Has he been out late nights, and felt sort of foxy in the morning that he wrote that, or does he wish us to believe that McKeesport is hotter than Hades.

A BEAUTY HINT.

How to Improve the Sallow Skin Without Medication.

The lucky possessor of a peach and cream complexion need not bother her head about what she wears or what she eats, but the girl of orange hue must consider both dress and diet if she would not resemble an exhausted mummy or a lump of saffron.

The fallow girl should look to her liver rather than to powder for lightening her complexion. A half lemon in a glass of water morning and evening and several quarts of plain water between will paint the cheeks better than the rouge pot.

Coffee must be cut off the fallow girl's list; so also should strong tea and too much chocolate. Rich foods, too many sweets and, above all, hot breads should be shunned.

Fruit in season and out is the boon of the yellow hue. Stint on everything else before you cut down your allowance of oranges and apples from the daily menu. The only possible exception in the fruit line is seedy berries, which are often too acid and clog the intestines. Quite as important as diet is becoming dress. Some girls with a skin like a clay bank persist in wearing cerus, purples and greens.

Hats can generally be worn by the fallow girl, most shades of blue and, above all, a soft rose pink. The fanny for brown which is prevalent with fallow women, while a better choice than cerus, does not give enough contrast unless high lights are there in whites.

White never fails to be becoming, as it seems to clear up the muddiest skin. It must be pure white, however, without a tinge of cream.

The woman with olive complexion will find the narrow line of black velvet ribbon that is now worn with evening gowns a positive boon. The black well up against the face—the band should be worn high on the throat—tends to whiten and clear her skin and makes possible a frock of a bad color. Gold beads should be carefully worn by the fallow girl. Certain tones of gold are hideously unbecoming, though the pale lemon tint is not out of the question.

One cannot lay down hard and fast rules as to color. To say blue is becoming does not mean Alice or porcelain tints, nor does the same shade of blue look well on every fallow person.

There is but one way to definitely know what can be worn. Test it in every light. Do not trust to your own judgment, but have with you an unbiased friend who is honest enough to say what she thinks.

Let no clever person tempt you by flattery into thinking you can wear with impunity colors that would try a milk and roses skin.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

When doing fine hand work keep a saucer of cornstarch near by, occasionally dip the fingers into it and wipe them with a soft towel.

A great amount of crossbar goods are used in women's underwear. Being so durable, it is highly recommended. There are medium heavy kinds and one variety more dressy because of the sheer material. This is strange to say, generally embroidered, although nightgowns are usually lace trimmed.

When sewing many women place a needle in the machine and use that one needle for all kinds of work with all kinds of thread, from No. 50 machine thread to the very finest. This makes a ugly stitch, often a thread loop from time to time. Always use a fine needle with thread used to tick fine lingerie. The stitch is smoother, and the goods do not have the large holes made by an extra large needle.

Charming little booties of white kid are made for the baby and embroidered with the featherstitch in pink or blue silk. The patterns for the diminutive boots are the same as that used for the knitted slippers of older people. First the tiny sole is cut, then the upper. The one is sewed to the other, the seam is fastened at the heel, and the top is bound in ribbon. The feather or brier stitching is then put all around the seams and just below the ribbon binding, and baby's shoes are finished.

An excellent way of making children's bib aprons is by using the regular yoke pattern, cutting the back deep enough so that a narrow piece of the goods comes under the arm. Instead of the same depth yoke in front, cut the material as long as the child's dress, rounding the goods at the skirt if you prefer. Join the back robe to the front piece, cut the sleeves and sew in. Face the yoke, neck and sides with bias strips of the material. Two buttons will be sufficient for the back. When finished you will have a bib that not only entirely covers the front of the child's dress, but also protects the sleeves.

Prizes at a Bridge Party.

How quaint are the Saxon china baskets or pots with remarkable rims of French gilt from which festoons of roses hang in contrast to the pure white of the china! These were the prizes at a recent bridge party, and in each bloomed a sturdy little plant of pink bachelor's buttons, as pretty a flower as one could wish to see in its springlike suggestiveness.

Where "Uncle Tom" Was Written. The old Kennedy homestead at Covington in which Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote the first chapters of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is to be torn down. The house was built in 1787, with loopholes and lookouts. The heavy oak doors and window shutters still bear heavy indentations made by tomahawks, and dozens of arrowheads are still imbedded in hewn log sides.

PARLIAMENTARY DON'TS.

Rules That Will Help the Clubwoman to Preside.

Don't misappropriate the funds of the club. That sounds most dreadfully harsh. It makes a noise like an absconding cashier. But that is not the idea. It is not the don't for the one who dishonestly makes away with the money. It is a simple rule of parliamentary law and business law that money should be used for the purposes designated in the constitution. These are the only legitimate uses for money raised by dues and assessments in federated bodies. For instance, a body will after long deliberation fix upon a certain amount for dues for its members.

All of the uses for which this money is to be put will be carefully gone over. The necessary traveling expenses perhaps of the officers are to be paid. No provisions are made for anything but the bare necessities of the organization. At some meeting an enthusiastic member, without any consideration of what are the legitimate and constitutional uses of that money, will jump to her feet and move that we donate $50 for some altogether foreign purpose. The president, without a moment's hesitation and before the assembly has really sifted the matter, puts the motion, calls for remarks, which the careful and conservative ones are afraid to make, and the motion is carried by default. There is no thought of how many fifteen, twenty-five, thirty-five cent dues it is going to require to pay this sum. There is no thought that the organization is going to be almost bankrupt. The president, who is the guardian of the law and constitution of her body, has not said: "This is unconstitutional. If you wish to divert our money into this channel, you must first amend your constitution. It is clearly illegal. I must not let you do this." The treasurer, the watch set over the money, should have demurred. But under the little excitement of doing some good work, of helping along a "cause," the funds have been misappropriated, and the organization suffers. And the blame lies with the presiding officer, who should be watchful for just such things.

It is often the case that assessments for necessary expenses must be made simply because the funds constitutionally provided and collected for the purpose have been all used carelessly for other things. If you wish to branch out in donations, if you wish to make gifts to officers, see to it that your constitution has covered the point or else serve notice that you wish to do these things and have a little bigger sum for dues, stating what use is to be made of the money in the amendment. If this were always done there would be more harmony in clubs and it would save the respect of organizations which have gone under just because the drain of assessments and dues are unbearable.

GAME FOR YOUNGSTERS.

Peanut Jab, the Funniest, Newest Thing Out.

A good game to start the ball a-rolling at a party would be peanut jab. As many dishes for water are provided as there are couples. These are placed on small card tables. On the top of each dish of water a dozen peanuts are set floating. Then each individual is provided with a hatpin and the game is called.

The object is to jab the nuts with the pin and land them in a pretty dish for this purpose without touching them with the fingers. When time is called the couple that has been most successful retains the nuts in lieu of score cards. The game is progressive, the successful contestants working toward the head table. Prizes may be in keeping with the season. Among these are summer bonnets made of raffia to hang beside a dressing bureau and hold hatpins; fluffy ducklings, chicken powder puffs, white jack rabbits, egg cups and other little novelties.

Among the old fashioned forfeits were the following:
"Bow to the prettiest, kneel to the whitest and kiss the one you love best."

Recite a nursery rhyme with appropriate gestures and elocutionary effect.

Recite the table of nine in the multiplication table backward.

(If a lady)—Tie a gentleman's necktie.

(If a man)—Show in pantomime how a woman does up her hair.

Sit crosslegged and with folded arms on the floor, Turkish fashion, and get up without unfolding the arms.

Pose for your picture—"Look pleasant, please."

Lippy-hop around the room, bowing to each lady as you pass.

Name the presidents of the United States.

Eat two dry crackers and immediately sing a song.

As to Art Stenciling.

So easy the merest youngster can do it, yet not too simple to interest grown-ups—that is what it is. Simply lay the designs on the material, put on the colors, and there you are.

And the best part of it all is that the designs are really artistic—pretty, even in their crudeness. In fact, their very simplicity is the chief charm.

Use unbleached muslin, burlap, crash, whatever you choose. And you may make scarfs for tables, bureau or chiffoniers, hangings of all sorts for summer homes, pillow covers or any number of pretty little articles.

You may procure whole sets to do the work or simply buy the design and your own colors. Either way it is not very expensive.

A Bad Man.

Herman Whitaker wrote a story of the Tehuantepec rubber plantation. Guadalupe, the mandador on one plantation at which Mr. Whitaker stayed, was informed that he was to be one of the characters in his story. "He never failed to question me each day as to the things I had made him do in the story," said Mr. Whitaker. "When one morning I informed him that I had killed him off, he expressed great surprise."

"Torgue, senior, por que?" "Because you are a bad man, Guadalupe." Which was perfectly true. "I, senior?" he questioned, greatly surprised. "Si, Guadalupe, you are bad. Think of how many men you have killed, according to your own count." "He thought for awhile, then looked up with a humorous smile. "Oh, well! Did I put up a good fight?" "You bet you did, Guadalupe." "Whereupon eyebrows and shoulders went up in a shrug. "Bueno! Bueno! Then it ees all right."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

After Hours.

Some years ago on a day set apart for humiliation and prayer a manufacturer offered to pay his workmen their wages on condition that they attended church. To this they readily agreed.

Shortly before evening service one of the employees called at his employer's residence and told the servant he wished "to see the master."

"Now, Jack, what do you want?" "Well, sor, me and ma mrys hev been taking the thing over, and we'd like to knoge if we can to church the next do we get overtime for?"—London Spare Moments.

HOPE TO SECURE PENALTY REDUCTION

Andrew Pearson Here in Advisory Capacity From Underwriters.

Andrew Pearson, who was here in an advisory capacity from the Underwriters association regarding the matter of the reduction of penalties on insurance in Charleroi this morning met with C. O. Frye, a member of the fire, water and light committee of council and with him went over the items, where there could be a possible reduction. Mr. Pearson will make a report of the Underwriters of the reductions asked for and action will be taken following.

The items where it is thought that a cut down in penalties can be secured are, from the change of the fire company from fifth to fourth class, the flushing of fire plugs, the establishing of lines for the use of a steam fire engine, so as to remove the penalty where it is not needed, and the police protection. By the above items it is hoped to secure a removal of at least $1,500 on each $1,000 insurance, which would mean much to some of the property holders of Charleroi.

The Colleges of Oxford.

Each college is built round a quadrangle with a large entrance gateway which often rises into a quasi tower. The rooms immediately over the gateway are invariably designed for the residence of the warden, provost or principal of the college, so that the eye of the master may be over all who enter or leave the place. This mode of building still exists in India, having been introduced into Europe by the Moors when they conquered Spain, where we find that the compound, or quad, is still used for the tethering of all kinds of animals. Around the quad are arranged the chapel, library, hall or refectory, president's lodgings, butery and kitchen. The students' rooms generally occupy the upper floors. William of Wickham, the celebrated architect, wisely placed his taller buildings—the chapel and hall—on the north side to keep off the cold winds, the lower buildings on the south more free from admittance sunshine.

CONTRACT IS PREPARED FOR PRESENTATION TO OFFICIALS

Hoped to get Water Affairs Fixed up by Next Tuesday.

READY FOR SIGNATURES

By Terms of Contract Water Company Gets Extent of Time.

The contract to be presented to the Charleroi Water company and the council of the borough of Charleroi for signatures, by which the negotiations between the two bodies are settled, was gone over yesterday afternoon by the Engineer Superintendent, Pollock, the Engineer Chester, and Attorney Irwin, of the Water company, and the Water committee of council, H. S. Pierson, Charles O. Frye and J. Frew, and the borough attorneys, D. M. McCloskey and Carl E. Gibson, in the office of Mr. McCloskey. The contract will be recommended as the most suitable one to both parties. It will be presented probably today or Monday to the president and secretary of the Water company, Mr. T. Mellon, and Mr. Pollock and it is thought will be signed by them. Mr. Pollock has already agreed to the terms. On Tuesday night it is more than likely that the water committee will make their report to council, and recommend the signing of the contract. If matters are thus brought to a close the suit instituted by the Charleroi Water company to collect about $2,500 alleged due them and the one brought against the company by three Charleroi citizens, Joseph Hepler, Charles Schaeffer and Frank Riva, will be declared off. The terms of the contract have been gone over generally before in the columns of the Mail. By it the borough will get a filtration plant, a duplicate pump and duplicate mains to the reservoir. It will also get an increase of ten fire plugs, and will, as in the past, be allowed the free use of water for the purpose of flushing sewers and cleaning the streets. The water company get a time limit of 10 years on their contract, making it twenty years from date when their contract will expire. One of the important features of the contract is that the company will be compelled to furnish copies of the rules governing the use of the water to each consumer.

Andrew Pearson, a representative of the Underwriters association was present at the meeting and made a statement of the penalties that it would be possible to have reduced. The amount of reduction on each $1,000 of insurance, as noted by the terms of the contract will be between $1.50 and $1.75.

It is hoped to get affairs settled up within the next few days so that work can be begun on the erection of the filtration plant. The citizens of Charleroi have been getting restless, and complaints have been made of the slowness in getting matters settled up.

PRESBYTERIANS BEAT EPISCOPALS

St. Mary's Play Ragged Ball, and Suffer Overwhelming Defeat.

Ragged playing by the Episcopalians was partly responsible for their defeat last evening on the baseball grounds, by the Washington Avenue Presbyterians. The Presbyterians played a good game and deserved to win. Carson, their pitcher, was mighty stingy with his hits allowing but six safeties and these scattered. The Episcopalians batted first. They had a chance to score right off the reel, but failed to take advantage of it. R. Turnbull was hit by the pitcher but was out on second when T. Gray hit one down to the short stop. Matthews was safe on an error. Roberts and W. Turnbull both were victims of Carson's curves.

The Presbyterians scored six runs in the first inning. Two bases on balls and six bad errors with several stolen bases were responsible for these. Three more came in the second, on a base on balls, two hits and two stolen bases. Three in the fourth on three hits and a stolen base brought them twelve scores, and one in the fifth on two hits and a stolen base.

Officials Want Favors Granted Them by North Charleroi and Charleroi.

FOR OPENING UP STREET

Probable that Agreements will be Reached at Meeting Next Week.

Representatives of the Pittsburgh Street Railway company were at North Charleroi yesterday to confer with the council of that place in regard to the opening up of McKean avenue between Charleroi and North Charleroi. It is planned by the boroughs of Charleroi and North Charleroi to have this street opened up in the near future for traffic, and have the street paved. It is the intention of the latter named borough to have Lincoln avenue. This is the street on which the car tracks are laid.

The street car men present were Mr. Larned, of the maintenance of ways department, Mr. McCarthy, of the engineering department and A. W. Stevenson of the rights of way department. The entire North Charleroi council went over the ground with them.

The company made a proposition to the borough officials that they would open up the street and pave between Charleroi and North Charleroi, but stated that in return, the rights of way to lay double tracks from the switch at North Charleroi to the car barn must be secured. The matter will be taken up again next week, in all probability, Wednesday evening, when the officials of the company will again be present. At this time it is thought that the committee of the Charleroi council, in charge of the matter of the affair for this borough of the entire council will be present at the meeting to be held.

It was stated this morning by a North-Charleroi councilman that it was thought there would be no difficulty in coming to agreements with the street car company. It is understood that the North Charleroi citizens regard the proposition as a good one.

Everyday Patriotism.

Tomorrow, July the Fourth, is the anniversary of American independence, although the following day will be observed, as the Fourth this year comes on Sunday. Needless to say, it will be celebrated in the customary noisy manner. There will be no lack of patriotic expression this day, both in sentiment and action. Attention will be directed to the real significance of the day, and orators will vie with each other in endeavoring to arouse the slumbering fires of patriotism which for the most part lie dormant in the hearts of the people.

Patriotism aroused once a year is better than no patriotism at all, but the best sort is the kind that finds expression every day in the year. This can be manifested by civic virtue and pride—pride in clean municipal government, pride in attending the suggestion meetings to name good patriotic citizens to administer the local offices; pride in attending the primary elections and placing good men in nomination; pride in attending the general elections and voting for none but purely disinterested and patriotic officials. This is the sort of patriotism which must be cultivated now, and in the future. The drum and trumpet type is no longer necessary. It is the perils of peace which now threaten our country, and there never was more urgent need of patriotism than today.

This is the type of patriotism which should be urged by our Fourth of July orators. The past is glorious in history, but it is the future that most concerns us now. There never was a time, perhaps when the chance of war was more remote; but patriotism of a high degree was never more imperative. It is love of country, home, family and friends, which must solve all the social and civic problems which confront us today, and for this the exercise of patriotism is demanded every day in the year.

Helps all Around.

The proposed development at Newell show most conclusively that the fourth pool is destined to figure largely in industrial developments, and that manufacturing interests are following the coal production. During the past generation all the coal developments of the upper pools have gone to make Pittsburg great; now for some years industries allied with the Pittsburg interests seek new locations, they follow the coal.

Newell's developments will attract others. There is the Clark farm, just above North Charleroi, which is being held for an industrial site. When Donora was projected it was a toss-up for several months whether the Clark farm or the present Donora site would be selected. Unfortunately for Charleroi at the time the Donora site was chosen, but the Clark farm is sure to come in some time, and when it does Greater Charleroi will lead all the towns in the county.

Electric Sparks

When a small girl or boy, well dressed, and evidently belonging to a good family, stops a person on the streets and asks for a penny or a larger sum, the said person sort of thinks that something is lacking in the kid's breeding.

At Fairmont members of the city council will not attend the meetings, it is understood because the liquor question is to be brought up. If such is the case, they can truly be said to be evading the issue.

There are a good many people who hate to hear the daughter of the man next door trying to play the piano. Likewise there are many that are not in raptures after a day spent in the neighborhood of a well drilled.

A San Francisco astronomer states that the moon is not a detached portion of the earth, but a planet captured by our old world. If that is so, reckon some of these swains will not be so fond of singing odes to the moon, when they learn it really doesn't belong to us any more than from the fact that it is confiscated property.

Strawberries have practically had their day and cherries are just warming up to business, while apples and peaches are beginning to, appear upon the scene. And just think, many of us who have not thought of our vacations as yet.

Here's where a man by the name of Blond nearly lost his sight. With all due reverence of him, we might say that while Blond lost his sight, we do not intend to lose sight of any blond, especially if she is blessed with the ordinary good looks.

Possibly the reason for the heat of the past few days, and the sudden showers, is the fact of the arrangements that are being made for the Home Coming week at Punxsutawney, the attention of Brer Groundhog having been engrossed in preparing for the affair.

The Baltimore Sun attributes many divorces and scandals to "artificial anarchistic compositions of the rag-time kings" of the day. Doubtless, but don't you think there is more in the singing of them than the songs themselves.

"Billy Bingham," the paragrapher for the McKeesport Times, recently wrote a fierce article which he afterwards acknowledged was a dream, of going to Hades, and having the honored leader of the tribe there show him around over the place, only to find it colder than McKeesport. Now how are we to take that. Has he been out late nights, and felt sort of foxy in the morning that he wrote that, or does he wish us to believe that McKeesport is hotter than Hades.

A BEAUTY HINT.

How to Improve the Sallow Skin Without Medication.

The lucky possessor of a peach and cream complexion need not bother her head about what she wears or what she eats, but the girl of orange hue must consider both dress and diet if she would not resemble an exhumed mummy or a lump of saffron.

The sallow girl should look to her liver rather than to powder for lightening her complexion. A half lemon in a glass of water morning and evening and several quarts of plain water between will paint the cheeks better than the rouge pot.

Coffee must be cut off the sallow girl's list; so also should strong tea and too much chocolate. Rich foods, too many sweets and, above all, hot breads should be shunned.

Fruit in season and out is the boon of the yellow hued. Stint on everything else before you cut down your allowance of oranges and apples from the daily menu. The only possible exception in the fruit line is seedy berries, which are often too acid and clog the intestines. Quite as important as diet is becoming dress. Some girls with a skin like a clay bank persist in wearing heavy make-up and wearing

Reds can generally be worn by the sallow girl, most shades of blue and, above all, a soft rose pink. The fancy for brown which is prevalent with sallow women, while a better choice than ecru, does not give enough contrast unless high lights are there in whites.

White never fails to be becoming, as it seems to clear up the muddiest skin. It must be pure white, however, without a trace of cream.

The woman with olive complexion will find the narrow line of black velvet ribbon that is now worn with evening gowns a positive boon. The black veil up against the face—the band should be worn high on the throat—tends to whiten and clear her skin and makes possible a frock of a bad color. Gold beads should be clearly worn by the sallow girl. Certain tones of gold are hideously unbecoming, though the pale lemon tint is not out of the question.

One cannot lay down hard and fast rules as to color. To say blue is becoming does not mean Alice or porcelain tint, nor does the same shade of blue look well on every sallow person.

There is but one way to definitely know what can be worn. Test it in every light. Do not trust to your own judgment, but have with you an unbiased friend who is honest enough to say what she thinks.

Let no clever person tempt you by flattery into thinking you can wear with impunity colors that would try a milk and roses skin.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

When doing fine hand work keep a saucer of cornstarch near by, occasionally dip the fingers into it and wipe them with a soft towel.

A great amount of crosshatch goods are used in women's underwear. Being so durable, it is highly recommended. There are medium heavy kinds and one variety more dressy because of the sheer material. This is, strange to say, generally unadorned, although nightgowns are usually more trimmed.

When sewing many women place a needle in the machine and use that one needle for all kinds of work with all kinds of thread, from No. 50 machine thread to the very finest. This makes an ugly stitch, often a thread loop from time to time. Always use a fine needle with thread used to tuck fine lingerie. The stitch is smoother, and the goods do not have the large holes made by an extra large needle.

Charming little booties of white kid are made for the baby and embroidered with the featherstitch in pink or blue silk. The patterns for the diminutive boots are the same as that used for the knitted slippers of older people. First the tiny sole is cut, then the upper. The one is sewed to the other, the seam is fastened at the heel, and the top is bound in ribbon. The feather or brier stitching is then put all around the seams and just below the ribbon binding, and baby's shoes are finished.

An excellent way of making children's bib aprons is by using the regular yoke patterns, cutting the back deep enough so that a narrow piece of the goods comes under the arm. Instead of the same depth yoke in front, cut the material as long as the child's dress, rounding the goods at the side if you prefer. Join the back yoke to the front piece, cut the sleeves and sew in. Face the yoke, neck and sides with bias strips of the material. Two buttons will be sufficient for the back. When finished you will have a bib that not only entirely covers the front of the child's dress, but also protects the sleeves.

Prizes at a Bridge Party.

How quaint are the Saxony china baskets or pots with remarkable rims of French gilt from which festoons of roses hang in contrast to the pure white of the china! These were the prizes at a recent bridge party, and in each bloomed a sturdy little plant of pink bachelor's buttons, as pretty a flower as one could wish to see in its springlike suggestiveness.

Where "Uncle Tom" Was Written.

The old Kennedy homestead at Covington in which Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote the first chapters of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is to be torn down. The house was built in 1787, with loopholes and lookouts. The heavy oak doors and window shutters still bear heavy indentations made by tomahawks, and dozens of arrowheads are still imbedded in heavy log sides.

PARLIAMENTARY DON'TS.

Rules That Will Help the Clubwoman to Precede.

Don't misappropriate the funds of the club. That sounds most dreadfully harsh. It makes a noise like an absconding cashier. But that is not the idea. It is not the don't for the one who dishonestly makes away with the money. It is a simple rule of parliamentary law and business law that money should be used for the purposes designated in the constitution. These are the only legitimate uses for money raised by dues and assessments in federated bodies. For instance, a body will after long deliberation fix upon a certain amount for dues for its members.

All of the uses for which this money is to be put will be carefully gone over. The necessary traveling expenses perhaps of the officers are to be paid. No provisions are made for anything but the bare necessities of the organization. At some meeting an enthusiastic member, without any consideration of what are the legitimate and constitutional uses of that money, will jump to her feet and move that we donate $50 for some altogether foreign purpose. The president, without a moment's hesitation and to the assembly has resolutely sifted the matter, puts the motion, calls for remarks, which the careful and conservative ones are afraid to make, and the motion is carried by default. There is no thought of how many fifteen, twenty-five, thirty-five cent dues it is going to require to pay this sum. There is no thought that the organization is going to be almost bankrupt. The president, who is the guardian of the law and constitution of her body, has not said: "This is unconstitutional. If you wish to divert our money into this channel, you must first amend your constitution. It is clearly illegal. I must not let you do this." The treasurer, the watch set over the money, should have demurred. But under the little excitement of doing some good work, of helping along a "cause," the funds have been misappropriated, and the organization suffers. And the blame lies with the presiding officer, who should be watchful for just such things.

It is often the case that assessments for necessary expenses must be made simply because the funds constitutionally provided and collected for the purpose have been all used carelessly for other things. If you wish to branch out in donations, if you wish to make gifts to officers, see to it that your constitution has covered the point or else serve notice that you wish to do these things and have a little bigger sum for dues, stating what use is to be made of the money in the amendment. If this were always done there would be more harmony in clubs and it would save the respect of organizations which have gone under just because the drain of assessments and dues are unbearable.

GAME FOR YOUNGSTERS.

Peanut Jab, the Funniest, Newest Thing Out.

A good game to start the ball rolling at a party would be peanut jab. As many dishes for water are provided as there are couples. These are placed on small card tables. On the top of each dish of water a dozen peanuts are set floating. Then each individual is provided with a hatpin and the game is called.

The object is to jab the nuts with the pin and land them in a pretty dish for this purpose without touching them with the fingers. When time is called the couple that has been most successful retains the nuts in lieu of score cards. The game is progressive, the successful contestants working toward the head table. Prizes may be in keeping with the season. Among these are summer bonnets made of raffia to hang beside a dressing bureau and hold bathpans; fluffy ducklings, chicken powder puffs, white jack rabbits, egg cups and other little novelties.

Among the old fashioned forfeits were the following:

"Bow to the prettiest, kneel to the wittiest and kiss the one you love best."

Recite a nursery rhyme with appropriate gestures and elocutionary effect.

Recite the table of nine in the multiplication table backward.

(If a lady)—Tie a gentleman's necktie.

(If a man)—Show in pantomime how a woman does up her hair.

Sit crosslegged and with folded arms on the floor, Turkish fashion, and get up without unfolding the arms.

Pose for your picture—"Look pleasant, please."

Hippty-hop around the room, bowing to each lady as you pass.

Name the presidents of the United States.

Eat two dry crackers and immediately sing a song.

As to Art Stenciling.

So easy the merest youngster can do it, yet not too simple to interest grown-ups—that is what it is. Simply lay the designs on the material, put on the colors, and there you are.

And the best part of it all is that the designs are really artistic—pretty, even in their crudeness. In fact, their very simplicity is the chief charm.

Use unbleached muslin, burlap, crash, make scarfs for tables, bureaus or chiffoniers, hangings of all sorts for summer homes, pillow covers or any number of pretty little articles.

You may procure whole sets to do the work or simply buy the design and your own colors. Either way it is not very expensive.

THE GREAT ROOT

JUICE IS HERE

It is Predicted that Many Will Call at Piper's Drug Store During the Demonstration.

The Root Juice demonstrations started at Piper Bros. drug store today. The scientist said: "I earnestly hope that Root Juice will do as much good in Charleroi as it has at Ft. Wayne Ind. and other points.

It is easy to say a remedy will cure certain troubles, but we have positive proofs that Root Juice will cure rheumatism, indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, constipation, nervous weakness and most of the kidney complaints. It cures by removing or destroying germs that often infest the body and weaken and disease the digestive and secretory organs. The Juice also has a wonderful soothing, healing and tonic action on the stomach, bowels, bladder, liver and kidneys. What it has done at other points, it certainly can do in Charleroi. I feel safe in predicting that in less than two weeks scores of local people will be loud in their praise of the health promoting juice." Newspaper reports indicate that many experience rapid improvement from the very start. The demonstrations will continue at Piper Bros. drug store a few days. The juice is sold for $1 a bottle or three bottles for $2.50. It has created a great sensation during the past few months on account of the many seemingly remarkable cures it has made.

order. The end of it was that after being much worried by one of the boys the poor fellow went home and shot himself. "Sir," replied Max O'Rell, "that is where my countryman made a little mistake. I should have shot the boy." The doctor rose, says M. Blouet, and grasped my hand. "M. Blouet," he exclaimed, "you are my French master!"—London Captain

Tips Costlier Than Treats.
They were going out of the Waldorf when he saw her look so longingly in at the big, beautiful roomful of white tables laden with roses that he said, "Will you go in and have a cup of tea or something?" She assented willingly. "Your hat and overcoat, sir," said the waiter grimly. "You are not allowed to sit in here with your overcoat on." "But," objected he, "I shall stay only a few minutes." "No matter, sir," said the waiter and took his hat and overcoat with an air of determination and disappeared. "That's the third time," sighed he. "That I have started to go home, met somebody and parted from my hat and coat to treat them. If it happens again the tips to the waiters for keeping my hat and coat will amount to more than the sum I have paid for the treats."—New York Press.

A Bad Mixup.
"Say," remarked one government clerk to another, "I'm up against it good and proper." "What's the trouble?" queried a c. c. No. 2. "I got two medical certificates from two different doctors yesterday," explained the party of the first part. "One was a certificate of health for a life insurance company, and the other was a certificate of illness to be sent to my chief with a petition for two weeks' leave of absence." "Oh, that's nothing," rejoined his fellow clerk, "I've done that myself." "Yes," continued the other, "but I mixed the certificates in mailing. The ill health certificate went to the insurance company and the certificate of good health went to my chief. See?"—Chicago News.

A Threatening Comet.
M. Camille Flammarion, the great scientist, after many years of study, arrived at the conclusion that the world will in the twenty-fifth century come across the path of the comet Bells. On this occasion a collision will take place, and Bells being infinitely greater than the earth, a shock may be expected which, he calculates, will be 565 times greater than the shock caused by the collision between two trains, each traveling at sixty-five miles an hour.

Never burn kindly written letters. It is so pleasant to read them over when the ink is brown, the paper yellow with age and the hands that traced the friendly words are folded over the hearts that prompted them. Keep all loving letters. Burn only the harsh ones and in burning forgive and forget them.

More Than Pleased.
"Did Miss Flavia seem pleased when you asked her to go to the theater?" "Pleased! She wanted to keep the tickets for fear something might happen to me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Humor in Advertising.
It is agreed on all sides that as a rule humorous advertisements are to be avoided. Business is business, and the businesslike ad. is the one that counts. Nevertheless it is interesting to come upon an odd, amusing or out of the ordinary specimen—for instance, that of the photographer who made a specialty of baby photographs. His advertisement read: "Bring your dear little babies. If they don't sit still I won't get cross. I was a baby once myself." What is especially rare is to find an advertiser who will exhibit any candor about the negative qualities of his goods. It is all the more refreshing, then, to peruse the announcement of an innkeeper in one of the smaller states who was evidently burning with a desire to tell the exact truth about his establishment: "Not the largest hotel in the town, not heavily furnished, throughout, no free bus to train; not the best grub the market affords, but simply clean beds and good food, 25 cents to sleep, 25 cents to eat. Toothpicks and ice water thrown in. Try us. Pay up. And if not satisfied keep 'em!"—London Answers.

Yarmouth's Narrow Street.
Kitty Witches' row, Great Yarmouth, can justly claim to be the narrowest street in the world, the entrance at one end being only twenty-nine inches and at the other fifty-six inches. It gives some idea of the width when one mentions that neighbors can shake hands and put out each other's candles across the street! Why there seems have been so constructed has given rise to a good deal of discussion. Some writers give the reason that when there was a very high tide the water might flow through them; others, in the event of an invasion they would prove an excellent means of defense or that the ground plans of the rows were suggested by the fishermen's nets, which, spread on the dunes to dry, had a narrow pathway left between them, which represented the rows. Yarmouth has 145 rows, and their total length exceeds seven miles. Kitty Witches' being the most interesting and the narrowest of all.

How Faraday Refused a Pension.
Lord Melbourne once announced to Faraday that it was his pleasing duty to offer him a pension, but he added, "I suppose all this science is humbug." Faraday at once replied, "If that is your opinion, my lord, I decline the pension," and retired. Melbourne, on meeting some of his colleagues, said: "I have had a strange thing happen. A man has declined a pension." But these gentlemen knew Faraday's position and reputation better than the premier and urged him to rectify the blunder. Faraday was again interviewed, but Melbourne was obliged to retract and apologize before the pension was accepted.

How He Worked the Artist.
This account of how an intimate friend of the great artist Kroyal obtained one of the painter's drawings is from Mrs. Hugh Fraser's "Letters From Japan." Kroyal always refused if asked outright for a sketch. So his friend began the negotiation by offering the artist an excellent dinner. When Kroyal had drunk deeply and secured in a mellow humor, his host called for drawing materials, saying that he felt an artistic fancy taking possession of him. No one was surprised, as Japanese gentlemen often amuse themselves in this way after a feast. The servant then brought an enormous sheet of white paper and spread it on the floor with the brushes and Tugian ink beside it. The crafty host, without looking at his guest, sank on his knees and began to draw, apparently absorbed in his occupation, but intentionally producing weak and incoherent lines. Kroyal watched the feeble effort in silence and growing irritation, and at last jumped up, dashed the trow aside and tore the brush out of his hand, exclaiming: "Out of the way, you wretched bungler! I will teach you how to draw!" And the result was a priceless sketch, which remained in the possession of the witty entertainer.

A Max O'Rell Story.
Before he attained fame with his various books M. Blouet (Max O'Rell), who was for several years French master at St. Paul's school, related the following story. At one of two or three earlier applicants had returned unsuccessful from their interview with Dr. Walker, who was at the time headmaster of the school, M. Blouet's turn came. "I want," said the doctor after a few words, "a French master who can prescribe discipline. My last was a perfect gentleman and a good fellow, but he could not read the classes in

A Bad Man.

Herman Whitaker wrote a story of the Tehuantepec rubber plantation, Guadalupe, the mandador on one plantation at which Mr. Whitaker stayed, was informed that he was to be one of the characters in his story. "He never failed to question me each day as to the things I had made him do—in the story," said Mr. Whitaker. "When one morning I informed him that I had killed him off, he expressed great surprise."

"Porque, señor, porque?" "Because you are a bad man, Guadalupe." Which was perfectly true. "I, señor?" he questioned, greatly surprised. "St. Guadalupe, you are bad. Think of how many men you have killed, according to your own report." "He thought for awhile, then looked up with a humorous smile. "Oh, well! Did I put up a good fight?" "You bet you did, Guadalupe." "Whereupon eyebrows and shoulders went up in a shrug. "Eueno! Bueno! Then it was all right."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

After Hours.

Some years ago on a day set apart for humiliation and prayer a manufacturer offered to pay his workmen their wages on condition that they attended church. To this they readily agreed.

Shortly before evening service one of the employees called at his employer's residence and told the servant he wished "to see the master."

"Now, Jack, what do you want?" "Well, sor, me and ma myets be been taking the thing over, and we'd like to knge if we can go to church the next do we get overtime for?"—London Spare Moments.

HOPE TO SECURE PENALTY REDUCTION

Andrew Pearson Here in Advisory Capacity From Underwriters.

Andrew Pearson, who was here in an advisory capacity from the Underwriters association regarding the matter of the reduction of penalties on insurance in Charleroi this morning met with C. O. Frye, a member of the fire, water and light committee of council and with him went over the items, where there could be a possible reduction. Mr. Pearson will make a report of the Underwriters of the reductions asked for and action will be taken following.

The items where it is thought that a cut down in penalties can be secured are, from the change of the fire company from fifth to fourth class, the flushing of fire plugs, the establishing of lines for the use of a steam fire engine, so as to remove the penalty where it is not needed, and the police protection. By the above items it is hoped to secure a removal of at least $1,500 on each $1,000 insurance, which would mean much to some of the property holders of Charleroi.

The Colleges of Oxford.

Each college is built round a quadrangle with a large entrance gateway which often rises into a quasi tower. The rooms immediately over the gateway are invariably designed for the residence of the warden, provost or principal of the college, so that the eye of the master may be over all who enter or leave the place. This mode of building still exists in India, having been introduced into Europe by the Moors when they conquered Spain, where we find that the compound, or quad, is still used for the tethering of all kinds of animals. Around the quad are arranged the chapel, library, hall or refectory, the students' rooms, generally occupy the upper floors. William of Wickham, the celebrated architect, wisely placed his taller buildings—the chapel and hall—on the north side to keep off the cold winds, the lower buildings on the south more freely admitting sunshine.
